

WORK2015 – Labour markets and labour policies

Chair:

Anna-Maija Lehto, Statistics Finland, FI

The labour markets have witnessed transformation from manufacturing economy of the past to the service economy of the present. The most significant of the large scale changes have been the global shift of the manufacturing employment and the growth of the service employment. With the transformation of the labour markets, also labour policies have changed. What types of changes (gender, age, generations, future) relate to the present labour markets? To what extent can the labour policies serve any longer the purpose of the nation-states' requirements in the global transformations.

Wednesday, 19 August, at 15.30-17.30 - Session 3

9.01

Internships: policy discourses and new meanings of work
Fredrik Stiernstedt, Sweden

9.02

Re-employment in Good Times and Bad Times: A longitudinal study on Labour Market Attachment of Displaced Workers after Plant Closures
Pertti Koistinen, Finland

9.03

Changes in working conditions and labour policies in the last decades
Anna-Maija Lehto, Finland

9.04

Matching in Structural Change Area
Olli Retulainen, Finland

Thursday, 20 August, at 8.30-10.00 - Session 4

9.05

It is not just about unemployment - Sudden structural change in the "Nokia-city" of Salo and increased insecurity in the labour market?
Minna Ylikännö, Finland

9.06

Cancelled

9.07

Waiting longer before claiming unemployment benefits. Does it raise job finding?
Eva Van Belle, Belgium