

WORK2015 – Migration, work and labour markets

Chair:

Östen Wahlbeck, University of Helsinki, FI

Migration has been one of the many ways of either finding new work and/or leaving a “bad” labour market. For those migrating work can be one way to attach to society and culture. This stream will examine how migration and work relate to each other in many differing ways: the effects on the work force, inter-cultural issues in work ethos, labour unions and migration are but a few of the themes that may be examined in this stream.

Thursday, 20 August at 10.30-12.00 - Session 5

13.01

Reception and perception of CEE labour migrants in the Danish labour market
Trine Lund Thomsen, Denmark

13.02

Intercultural adaptation of Filipino nurses in the Finnish health care organizations
Päivi Vartiainen-Ora, Finland

13.03

Experiences of teachers with different language and cultural background working in Finnish kindergarten
Monika Haanpää, Finland

Thursday, 20 August at 15.30-17.30 - Session 6

13.04

cancelled

13.05

Transnational working-life trajectories of Central and Eastern European migrant workers
Doris Simkunas, Denmark

13.06

The Immigration Policy of Turkey for Syrian Immigrants: Yalova City Sample
Orhan Kocak, Turkey

13.07

The Mobilisability of Transnational Social Capital and the Mixed Embeddedness of Turkish Immigrant Businesses in Finland
Östen Wahlbeck, Finland